Orange Wine

*This product contains Alcohol

- The rise of orange wine is creating a new type of casual wine drinker.
- This wine is something entirely different from a wine made from orange or a Mimosa Cocktail. Orange Wine is made by mashing up the white grapes and then leaving them in a large vessel made of cement. It is made by a natural process of fermenting the grapes for days and sometimes for over a year.
- Orange Wine does not require additives or even yeast for its production. These orange wines taste different from regular white wines and bear a sour taste from oxidation. Luxury foods & beverages like wine have affluent customers who are willing to spend a huge amount for personal enjoyment. These luxury foods like Orange wine show quite a sell even during the course of turbulence in the economy.
- The new flavors increase the curiosity among individuals to taste them, therefore it is anticipated to increase the demand for orange wine over the forecast period. The increasing urbanization also drives the demand for wine in the market. The urban population is more inclined towards parties and clubbing, therefore, resulting in an increase in the demand for Orange wine in the global market. The increasing penetration of the internet and social network among the millennial population is likely to upsurge the demand worldwide.

Frozen Drinks and Non Alcoholic Drinks

- The growing popularity of frozen cocktails among the millennials and significant increase in the purchase of frozen beverages has also contributed in boosting its market growth.
- The frozen cocktail dispenser machine requires minimal ingredients and have the potential to create highly profitable product offering; thereby, fueling its market growth.
- The rise in consumers' demand for convenient and innovative refreshing drinks is a major factor driving the frozen cocktails market. The change in their taste preferences along with their growing experimentation with new flavors and taste in various alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages has supported the market growth.
- North America is observing a significant rise in the market due to their surging popularity among the consumers as many bars have started adding frozen-style alcoholic beverages to their menus.
- Ready-to-eat food rather than cook it. Ready-to –drink drinks rather than make them. Ready-to-drink premixes.

The Non Alcoholic Drink Market

- Having an option that tastes the same as an alcoholic beverage, or even better, is a great win for non-alcoholic drinkers.
- This trend is not about not drinking at all but about having more choice in drinks without giving up your social life.
- Consumers are interested in drinking less alcohol without sacrificing their social life.
